I'm sorry to tell you this: your child has cancer. Each year in America, those devastating words thrust parents of more than 12,000 children and adolescents into a frightening dark tunnel, dramatically changing the dynamics of each family because childhood cancer attacks quickly and unexpectedly. Parents reel, bombarded with information regarding treatments, tests, and decisions as parents echo, "I've never felt so alone." I feel like I'm in a fog from the initial diagnosis and throughout the daunting journey. The twelve chapters and resources in Hope for Families of Children with Cancer weave advice, support, and hope from fellow travelers and professionals who come alongside through encouraging short stories, refreshing helpful hints, and inspiring scriptures and prayers. Many weary parents pull apart as communication breaks down, sometimes far apart. An added study you quickly made helps family members appreciate different personalities and methods of coping. Overwhelmed families find comfort and courage as writers deal with the struggles parents face balancing needs of their child, family, the set-aside spouses, and the invisible ones: siblings and self, the caregiver, the new normal of childhood cancer.
